

La Jencia Ranch Nonviolent
Communication (NVC) Training
Socorro County, NM
May 19-23

Do you want deeper and more heartfelt connections with friends and family? Are you longing for skills that will enable your personal empowerment, growth and development? Are you curious about Nonviolent Communication (NVC) and wish to experience an alternate power-with paradigm of being? Do you like to spend time in nature?

Join Center for Nonviolent Communication (CNVC) Certified Trainer Jack Lehman in partnership with Clayton Barker and Terry Flanagan (both currently enrolled in NVC Leadership Training Programs) as they offer a weekend long workshop in NVC. Together, we will co-create a playful, educational learning community living in the consciousness of NVC in a high desert remote and wild environment.

La Jencia Ranch is a conservation ranch in Socorro County that is currently managed for wildlife and wildland preservation. With a rich history and thousands of acres to explore, La Jencia provides the ultimate inspirational backdrop for a weekend spent in the wilderness of your heart and imagination. Resident elk, coyote, antelope, owls, black bear and the occasional cougar may grace our presence as we explore what is most alive.
